Integrated studies define Core Strategies in learning how principals and teachers, parents and students, and schools and districts collaborate to change the futures of their young people. An overwhelming sense of mentoring camaraderie is helping communities pull together and accomplish things they never thought possible. When students work together on project teams, they learn to collaborate, communicate, and resolve conflicts. Effective assessment should measure the full range of student ability -- social, emotional, and academic achievement, and multiple learning styles are supported. The mentoring approach inspires ownership among students inside and outside the classroom, building trust in others and developing positive self-esteem, which can be critically lacking in many of today's challenged youngsters. By providing a solid framework, mentoring creates synergy among the participants so that everyone involved is enriched in the process. Students need to be creative, flexible risk takers who welcome responsibility and accountability. Teachers need to get results and develop people and make the most of the human resources found in every community. We need people who can think; people who can lead; and people who can work as part of a team – all skills addressed by making the connection between education and experiential learning.

Psycho-Neuro-Immunology (P.N.I.), and in the path of fellow PNI professionals such as Depok Chopra, is using her background as an author and speaker to influence audiences nation-wide. Before her work in P.N.I. she was an NLP specialist and before that a Learning Disability Specialist AND before that, a "mom" bothered by the varied learning styles of each of her children. Not too long ago, Dr. Ardy introduced the "Synergy Pals" as a method of understanding whole-brain thinking. We make a good learning fit with each other when we nurture natural talents. She presents humor with a message. She believes that influence, the capacity to shift a person's perceptions, emotions, and actions, is the single most important skill we can master to increase the quality of our lives as well as the lives of all those we have the privilege to touch. Dr. Ardy believes life produces extraordinary rewards for those who give in extraordinary ways. She challenges us to make a joint commitment today, to participate together with a new level of intensity and passion, a level that goes far beyond anything we've ever done before. She challenges us to begin the process of taking our lives to the next level. How? Welcome this power simply by helping each other in the spirit of service, with love and laughter.
